See...this is how it works

So this comment just came in on my last post:

Randall Cajun has left a new comment on your post "A pet peeve":

I'm not sure about your pet peeve being valid. Writing on "comments" sections might truly be properly labelled as blogging. Don't want Maselli Mann and Pericone to give you a bad name? You can't really blame the MSM or others for calling them bloggers. Think Blogger, GoDaddy, and Google are somehow different from Advance?

And what's up with the people you would call bloggers? Is blogging supposed to be about personal agendas and vendettas vented online and hidden behind "blogging" as though it was some MSM journalistic enterprise? Take Vandenweghe, for example. It seems like she may have had longstanding personal agendas she vented as a "blogger," like I suggest at real-malice.blogspot.com. Also, what about Maselli-Mann and Vandenweghe? What's up with that? What about Vandenweghe's recent lunch with Broussard? Kinda hypocritical, no?

Sooooooo.....here is his IP and location from my stats:

 Eastlink (71.7.180.10)	Goatherders	1 returning visit
 Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, Canada	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/> Multiline URLs

Thanks for participating, Randall!

Hey...quick question....how is it that Canada gets its own currency but none of the other states do?

Wow !!!

Tracked me down to EastLink, amazing!

So how about the substance of my comment?

I guess this is just whatt happens with the blogosphere gang, as Whitmergate says, Jason.

Please prove you're not a robot.

Please go fuck yourself.

I don't cover Jeff Parish topics here...unless they intersect with Orleans. I think the blog you're looking for is Slabbed. Take the conversation there.

What's hypocritical about Anne Vandenweghe having lunch with a witness in her Federal Court case or with her attorney discussing his knowledge of your Canadian conduct as it relates to Slabbed? Only time will tell. I look forward to meeting you soon when you post your worthless bond in Federal Court to test the solvency of that.

Boy Randall sure knows alot from there in southern Nova Scotia. I thought Charles leary and Vaughn Perret swore to the Times Picayune that Broussard was just some guy down the road. Now they know whom he goes to lunch with. Impressive.

You guys really should lay off the sause before you go playing on the internet.

Really simple...Blog, shortened from "web log". If you keep a running "web log" of your thoughts and opinions under your control, you are a "blogger". Leaving comments on someone else's site you are a "commenter" despite what Major Media outlets might lead you to believe (the paragon of accuracy, that they are).

I think this was a marketing ploy, when blogs were first getting some attention: "Come to our site and vent your spleen and you'll be a 'blogger' too."

Randall, I just want to point out how big of a dumbass you really are. You not only gave yourself by disclosing your knowledge of the lunch meeting, you just admitted that the IP I posted is yours. You realize anything you say on real malice could land your ass in a libel suit and now that we have your IP all it will take is a court order to Eastlink to turn your identity over.

You know....the same way you were using the court to force ISP's and site hosts to take down Slabbed?

You sir....put the dip in shit.

Dambala - Jason B. Berry said...

Wait...I'm not done telling you how stupid you are.

You named the blog "Real Malice"? You realize the hardest thing to prove in a libel suit is whether or not the accused party was publishing with...malice. You just established the hardest hurdle in a libel case with the name of the goddamn blog.

How fucking stupid can you possibly be?

Let me extend more rope....just keep writing, please, keep it up.

Dambala - Jason B. Berry said...

I know you want to respond to that....please...go ahead. Tell me how wrong I am. Please. I don't understand "malice". Please....you have the floor.
